FOX25 NEWS HONORED WITH EDWARD R MURROW AWARD FOR BREAKING NEWS

BOSTON —

FOX25 has received an Edward R. Murrow Award in the Breaking News category for coverage of the first blizzard to hit Massachusetts in the historic winter of 2015.

During the January snowstorm, FOX25 stayed on-air for 22 straight hours, providing exclusive live coverage in the overnight hours when the storm was at its worst. FOX25 reporters and photographers braved the elements, to keep viewers informed and prepared.

“This truly was a team award that everyone at FOX25 earned,” said Vice President and General Manager Tom Raponi.

“Being on the air for 22 consecutive hours, keeping viewers constantly informed of the dangerous conditions and emergency circumstances, was truly an extraordinary effort,” added News Director Lee Rosenthal.

Radio Television Digital News Association gives out the Edward R. Murrow awards annually. Award recipients demonstrate an excellence that Edward R. Murrow set as a standard in the profession. Murrow was a pioneer of television news broadcasting and is considered one of journalism's greatest figures.
